

Swati Bhomia
Batch 2008-09
Research Scholar at Space Applications Centre, ISRO,
Ahmedabad
Pursuing Ph.D. in Physics at Gujarat University

I could write quite a long essay extolling numerous reasons I'm grateful for my time, experiences, and education at BBVP.

There are so many reasons why I deeply appreciate the education I received at BBVP. For one thing, I learned that hard work pays off, both in and outside the classroom. I used to be a very shy and timid person, and my English was not so good. Studying at BBVP helped me in overcoming my fears and how to deal effectively with the challenges. I'm profoundly grateful for the cooperative and friendly teachers I had during my seven years at BBVP. I remember the name of every teacher I had from 6th to 12th grade. It was easy for me to love school because they enthusiastically encouraged my learning, made it fun and interesting, challenged me in my strong areas and offered extra support in areas I needed it. I still love school, due to the way the teachers shared their passion for reading, writing, and applying their learning to everyday life.

Through the years I have noticed that features of human personality are at least 50% important in the job career. The other part is of course the professional experience. My education at BBVP is one of the greatest blessings and privileges of my life. I am quite certain that there's no way I'd be who I am or where I am today without the intellectual, moral, social, and religious formation I received, thanks to especially committed and passionate teachers, administrators, and parents. I knew my education required that my parents had to make sacrifices in other areas.

But rather than feeling guilty about this, I felt empowered to make a difference with the education I received. I hope that I will find an opportunity to be a part of any of the functions the school organizes in future, so that I can feel the warmth of my teachers and environment of my school once again.

“Time flies like an arrow”, the days I spent in BBVP were exactly like this proverb. With deepest thanks and prayers for God's choicest blessings for everyone at BBVP- past, present, and future.